A.G. GILCHRIST (1863–1954)

A RESOURCE GUIDE TO HER MANX ACTIVITIES

This is an update of Manx Note 123 (2011), “A.G. Gilchrist (1863–1954): A Resource Guide to her Manx Activities.” Newly added sources are two letters recently found amongst the personal papers of Sophia Morrison and C.I. Paton and extracts from the latter’s diary relating to his collaboration with Gilchrist when she was editing the Clague Collection for publication. An overlooked review in Folk-Lore of the appearance of the Clague Collection in the Journal of the Folk-Song Society has also been added. Corrected is the date span of the extant correspondence with Morrison; the end date is 1916 and not 1917 as earlier stated. It is also questionable whether the undated fragment letter had an attachment to it: the stain mark of a rusted paper clip may simply relate to the piece being gathered together with other letters or items amongst her papers. A typo in the P.W. Caine review from 1925 has been corrected. The Douglas Kennedy letter is clearly dated 1931, no conjecture was needed as to its year. Following next as a Manx Note will be an archival edition of the Gilchrist correspondence.
