

Manx Notes 482 (2020)

“DAWSIE”

“A CHURCH FOR REGABY GATE”

(1871)

SIR,—Above a year back I seen a mortal nice latter in your paber about a new Church for the Dhurlish Voar, and I was thinkin that it was bad enough in want of one; it was too, but theer’s northin done at them yet for all, and I’m afeered its all goin to end in smooke tis. Its the Archdaycon I was thinkin may be was goin to built it, but they or sayin that all his money is spent at him on the big steeble in Kirk Kandhras. Its a grand steeble that, man, and would do fine extronuary to keep pigeons in. Some is sayin that’s what its for too, man. I don know, but I would like terrible to see the new Church agoin abuildin. I’m mosly tired of the noise and clatter in the Chapel. I could give a lif wis the singin.—Yours, &c,

DAWSIE.

Pseud [signed as “Dawsie”]. “[Letter to the Editor] A Church for Regaby Gate.” Mona’s Herald 4 January 1871: 3c.

*

A follow-on from Manx Notes 481 (2020).

STEPHEN MILLER RBV

